Artist Statement

I have described my sculptures as large toys that make humorous statements about human interactions. The primary aim in my work is to illustrate concepts that I find enthralling. The resulting objects deal on many levels with formal and thematic issues. I seek an equal blend of art, craft, and the presentation of compelling ideas in intriguing ways. I engage the viewer on several levels: physically, visually, and intellectually. It is my hope that my work will enrich the viewer and make her/him see the world as slightly more tragic or laughable (or possibly both at the same time).

My work has been shown in over 350 exhibitions in 45 states and internationally. I have won over 50 awards for my art and my teaching and my work is in over 60 public and private collections. My work has been published in Sculpture magazine, American Craft, Craft Digest, and Art Calendar, as well as in 500 Chairs and Chairs by Lark Books. I am an Associate Professor of Art at the University of Southern Indiana.
